AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER
(Established 1870)

This paper will always fight for progress and reform. It will not knowingly tolerate injustice or corruption and will always fight demagogues of all parties; it will oppose privileged classes and public plunderers; it will never lack sympathy with the poor, it will always remain devoted to the public welfare and will never be satisfied with merely printing news, it will always be drastically independent and will never be afraid to attack wrong, whether committed by the rich or the poor.

AS TO THE ARRESTED MAN, M. A. SMITH

At last an arrest has been made in the Blackhand outrages. Myron A. Smith, a resident of Ogden for ten years, has been accused, in fact a complaint has been sworn to by the federal authorities, charging the man with the crime of blackmail. Mr. Smith's handwriting is said to be similar to that of the author of the Dea-Bristol blackmail letters, and, furthermore, the accused has been under surveillance during the past six months as one of three men who might have been guilty.

There is much circumstantial evidence that points to the prisoner, and yet he may be innocent. No one desires to punish an innocent man for the crimes which have terrorized many of the people of this community during the long period of blankhand atrocities, and, therefore, we should guard against prejudging Mr. Smith. If, on the accused, can be unmistakably fixed responsibility for the blackmailing letters, then he should be made to suffer the extreme penalty of the law, but above all he must be accorded an impartial, fair trial, and without doubt, he will receive that which is his due.

Joshua Morley, whose name has been connected with the affair, is known to hundreds of Ogdenites as a hard-working, industrious young man. He was employed by the Fred J. Kiesel Co., at one time as a janitor and of late years has been contracting as a carpenter. His friends vouch for his integrity and even the officers, we understand, exonerate him of any wrong-doing. His name was brought into the case by a loose remark made by Smith as to a conversation they had heard.

L. E. Libby was questioned by the detectives yesterday and released after giving an excellent account of himself.

Venus Monson, who was halted by local people, while running down Twenty-fifth street at about the time of the Eccles explosion, has been able to prove his actions had nothing to do with the dynamiting.

So the whole case centers around M. A. Smith, whose offer to disclose the identity of the holdups has involved him in serious trouble. Without prejudice, we must await his side of the story and the developments of the future.

WHAT THE ELECTION MEANS

This is the second municipal election, under the commission form of government, held in Ogden. The period of campaigning has passed and the decision of the people is being recorded. Two commendable features have been the failure to indulge in bitter personalities and the almost total absence of the tactics of the ward-heeler and the old political boss. Party has been eliminated and men and measures have been balanced in the scales of public opinion, and that should make toward better government, as the results should be more nearly what the people want than they possibly could be under old conditions of blind party allegiance.

Regardless of who is elected, the city will move forward. All the candidates are men of high character and of more than ordinary ability. They all are trustworthy in the handling of the city's business. That is a most fortunate situation and, in a measure, may account for the lack of interest which has prevailed during the closing days of the contest.

THE ULTIMATUM TO HUERTA

We hope President Wilson and Secretary Bryan are successful in driving Huerta and his clique out of the capitol of Mexico. The ultimatum, delivered last Sunday, is said to have the approval of the European powers, that have conceded to America the right of leading in the solving of the Mexican problem.

Huerta's regime is based on assassination. No government should recognize murder as a means to the gaining of control of a nation, no more so than should a state or a city in that manner condone the breaking of the commandment, "Thy shalt not kill."

If Huerta refuses to comply, and there is reason to expect that refusal, the United States may be in a position, by the co-operation of the other powers, to break down Huerta's financial credit and, by depriving him of the sinews of war, force the collapse of his military power.

Huerta, without the army of Mexico at his command, would be in greater danger of death than any of the men against whom he has had a murderous hatred.

But after Huerta what? We doubt that the country, with its hatreds of three years, can be restored to peace except through a compromise whereby the powers of a president shall be placed in the hands of a commission made up of the different factions struggling for supremacy.

FICTION IS NOW FACT.

"One of the popular magazines published several months ago a story full of thrills in which the principal character was an old man who had perfected a wonderful invention by means of which he would make war so horrible that he would bring peace to the world," says the Independent.

"The invention was in connection with a wireless device by means of which a person could by setting up the machine miles away from a war ship blow it up. It was equally efficacious for destroying forts. The old man took it to the German government and he was promised if he would demonstrate that what he claimed could be done the German government would cede Alsace and Lorraine to France and bring about peace in the world.

"The old man promised to do so, and going to Toulon, he blew up a French warship and hundreds of men lost their lives. Then the old man started for America. On board the ship with him was a prince of Germany and a great admiral. The latter repudiated the peace bargain and tried to buy the secret of the invention from the old man. But he failed. Later the old man went to the French republic with his proposition and he was told if he would prove its claims by blowing up a German fort France would agree to his terms. The inventor located in a German town and made his arrangements. The demonstration was to be made at noon on a certain day. Everything was in readiness, the wire was touched, but instead of the fort being destroyed the machine was, and the old man killed, his secret perishing with him, according to the story.

"The tale was a bit of fiction supposedly, well written, and of absorbing interest. A dispatch from London, under date of October 27, shows that what was fiction not many months ago is today a fact. The London dispatch says that a warship has been blown up by wireless off Portsmouth during an experiment with a mysterious invention which the admiralty is testing. The ship on which the experiment was being made was the third class cruiser Terpsichore, a vessel of 3,400 tons. She now lies in dock with her bottom blown to pieces.

"Details of the invention are jealously guarded, but it is known that for some weeks before the experiment was made the vessel was in dock yard hands and that a mysterious metal box was fixed to the bottom of the ship. On Wednesday morning last the Terpsichore was towed to Stokes Bay and from a battleship eight miles away the material contained in the box was exploded by a wireless ray or spark.

"There was a vast upheaval of water and the cruiser was afterward seen to have a heavy list to port. Five dock yard tugs closed in on the cruiser and by means of powerful pumps kept her afloat until she was safe within the dock yards.

"It is not thought the invention has anything to do with the F rays, though apparently, it is similar to M. Uliv's discovery."

MAKING OF WAR MATERIALS AND WAR SCARES

Congressman William Kent of California, according to Collier's, has introduced a resolution giving to the government a monopoly of the manufacture of explosives. As to particular commodity, Congressman Kent doesn't care much whether the government can do it more or less efficiently, more or less expensively. He puts it entirely on this argument: "It is a matter of common knowledge . . . that those interested in the manufacture of war materials have been potent factors in the promotion of war scares and of war. In the villainous business of war the question of dividends to individuals or corporations should never be permitted to enter."

Everyone will recall the German scandal over the influence exerted by the Krupp in the stirring up of a war spirit; how the Germans constantly were kept on edge with reports of French military activities directed against Germany. Nearly every country has had a similar experience with manufactured war scares, and, as Congressman Kent says, any country would profit by making its own war material for by so doing one of the most potent factors in creating international hatreds would be done away with.

Election Returns, Ogden Theater, Tonight.Society*MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Saturday, November 1, the Historical society met with the Misses June and Lois Pierce. The meeting was called to order by the vice president, Mrs. Bichsel, at 3:15 p. m., with nine members present, several arriving later. Miss Kline whose name had been submitted at the previous meeting was unanimously elected to membership. A summary of the work of the civic commission for last year was given by Miss June Pierce at the request of Mrs. Bichsel and a discussion was held as to whether or not a commission on civic work should be appointed for the present year. The matter was left until the next meeting.

The following program, with Miss Seaman as chairman was successfully carried out: Solo, Miss Moran; reading of "The Declaration of Peace" by Miss Seaman. Miss Seaman quoted from President Wilson's Mobile speech in a very interesting manner. The emphasis of Mrs. Potter's most scholarly address was placed on the present war in the Industrial World. After a reading from Bulson, Mrs. Bishop read the poem, "Dream the Great Dream," by Florence Earl Coates. Several other poems were also read by Mrs. Bishop. Following a solo by Miss Moran, dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

Guests of the club were: Mrs. William Harcombe, Sr., Mrs. William Harcombe, Jr., Miss Betty Harcombe, Mrs. Richard Pierce, Miss Moran and others.

MISS CALVERT ENTERTAINS

Friday evening a nicely planned Halloween party was given by Miss Donna W. Calvert in honor of her Sunday school class at her home, 1217 Twenty-fifth street. In the dining room festoons of black and orange crepe paper together with black cats, pumpkins, and witches predominated. After an evening of various games the prizes being awarded to Miss Burford Johnson and Miss Hannah Ecklund, delicious refreshments were served, the guests departing for their homes, declaring Miss Donna and her mother charming hostesses.

Those invited were the Misses Elizabeth Seppich, Burford Johnson, Venetia Parry, Lucy Ashton, Ellen Reberg, Rosa and Willa Astill, Helen Stauffer, Dorothy Lindsey, Ruth Winters, Marie Willis, Mary Vogel, Leatrice Leidig, Hannah and Nancy Ecklund.

body guard, today made an early tour of the Sixth assembly district from which he seeks election to the state assembly on the Progressive ticket. He visited nearly all of the polling places and at most of them was greeted with cheers. A heavy vote was being cast.

Returns in Massachusetts Late.
Boston, Nov. 4.—Rain was falling throughout Massachusetts when the voting began today. Balloting started early in Boston and several other cities but as it will continue into the evening in many places, the returns in the contest for governor between Gardner, Republican, and Foss, Democrat; Bird, Progressive, and Foss, Independent, are expected to be very late.

Betting Favors Bell.
Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—Election day in Indiana opened clear. Every city and incorporated town in the state is voting for municipal officers. Early voting in Indianapolis, was heavier than usual. The four main candidates for mayor here are Joseph E. Bell, Democrat; Charles A. Bookwalter, Republican; Dr. W. H. Johnson, Progressive, and Dr. C. S. Wood, Citizens. The betting slightly favored the election of Bell.

Women Vote in Illinois.
Chicago, Nov. 4.—Women voters today took a prominent part in "wet and dry" elections in 24 Illinois cities and towns. Results in several localities are said to hinge on the strength of the recently enfranchised voters shown in mustering their forces at the polls. Many women were among the early voters in all of the 24 cities.

Fierce Fight in Ohio.
Columbus, Nov. 4.—Fine weather and brisk winds marked elections in this state today, at which municipal officers for all cities, towns and villages, and several proposed constitutional amendments are being voted on.

The "wet" and "dry" issue attracted much attention along with fierce political fights in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Columbus, Toledo and other large cities.

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—Lead—Firm, $4.25. Spelter, steady, $5.25@5.30.

Chicago Grain.
Chicago, Nov. 4.—Lower cables and fine weather all over the domestic belt depressed wheat prices today, the market opening 1-8 to 3-8 below yesterday's close and because of lack of support showing quickly a still further decline.

Corn eased off in sympathy with wheat and experienced a further setback after opening 1-8@3-8 to 3-8c lower than the previous close.

Under general local selling, oats weakened, prices taking a further drop after starting a shade to 1-4c net lower than yesterday's final figures. On larger run of hogs here than expected, provisions took a downward course, the list, except May lard, which was unchanged, showing a net loss of 2 1/2@7 1/2 cents.

The close of wheat was firm, 1-8 1/2 to 1-2@5-5c net lower.
The close of corn was weak at a net loss of 1-4@3-8c to 5-8@3-4c.

Amos I. Stone and sons, A. C. and R. W. of Ogden, returned Sunday evening from a few days stay at the Tuttle Stone mine in Ward canyon. Mr. Stone recently obtained the patent to 240 acres of land in the vicinity of the mine which he thinks would be ideal for summer homes as soon as the Salt Lake-Morgan road is built, which as now proposed, would pass through that locality. Much of this ground is covered with tall quakensap trees furnishing an abundance of shade. Mr. Stone would cheerfully donate a right-of-way for the Salt Lake-Morgan road and he is quite enthusiastic over the matter and would like to encourage adjacent land owners to do likewise.—Bountiful Clipper.
